Dear Colleagues,

I am pleased to announce that Dr. Kelly Lytle Hernandez, Professor of History and African American Studies, will be the Interim Director for the Ralph J. Bunche Center for African American Studies, effective July 1, 2017.

Professor Lytle Hernandez is one of the nation’s leading historians of race, policing, and incarceration in the United States. Her award-winning book, MIGRA! A History of the U.S. Border Patrol (University of California Press, 2010), explored the making and meaning of the U.S. Border Patrol, arguing that the century-long surge of U.S. immigration law enforcement in the U.S.-Mexico borderlands is a story of race in America. Her latest publication, City of Inmates: Conquest, Rebellion, and the Rise of Human Caging in Los Angeles, 1771-1965 (University of North Carolina Press, 2017), is an unsettling tale that spans two centuries to unearth the long rise of incarceration as a social institution bent toward disappearing Black, Brown, and Indigenous peoples from land, life, and society in the United States. She is also the Principal Investigator for the project, Million Dollar Hoods, a mapping of how much Los Angeles area police departments have spent on incarceration since 2010 (milliondollarhoods.org).

Professor Lytle Hernandez received her B.A. in Ethnic Studies from UC San Diego, and Ph.D. in History from UCLA.

I would like to recognize and thank Professor Darnell Hunt for his many years of distinguished service as director.

Please join me in welcoming Professor Lytle Hernandez to the Bunche Center in this leadership role.

Sincerely,
David K. Yoo

Journal criticized for not consulting black scholars on race

A leading political philosophy journal’s feature about Black Lives Matter received criticism for not including contributions from a black academic in its June issue. Melvin Rogers, UCLA professor of Political Science and African American Studies, called the lack of black voices "especially egregious." "You have a major social movement that comes about because of police violence and a failure of the state to respond effectively. You put together a symposium ... and construct it in such a way that replicates the very problem the movement is trying to respond to. The signal this sends to scholars of color that care about this is that they, too, are invisible."

New research: student well-being higher in diverse schools

Sandra Graham, UCLA Professor of Education, co-authored a report in the journal, Child Development, and found that students who attend more racially- and ethnically-diverse schools report less vulnerability, loneliness, insecurity and bullying. The study polled nearly 6,000 sixth graders in 26 middle schools mostly in Los Angeles County. According to Graham, “kids [in more diverse schools] have more opportunity to have cross-race friendships and then they become protective. So if you’re in a diverse school and you’ve made friends with people from different racial and ethnic groups then they help protect you, they help introduce you to kids in their ethnic, racial group, there’s more opportunities to find your niche and fit in.”

How much more evidence does Hollywood need before it trusts its biggest projects to talented women?

‘Wonder Woman’ had the best domestic opening ($103 million its debut weekend in the US) by a female director, Patty Jenkins, and featured a female lead character played by Israeli actress, Gal Gadot. The film drew almost as many men as women into the movie theaters.

Considering that ‘Wonder Woman’ has achieved worldwide commercial and critical success, “How much more evidence does Hollywood need before it will trust its biggest projects to talented women?”
